

CEEB Tests Screen Entrants; Night School Enrollment Soars

By Jim Moritz

Father John J. Scanlan, S.J., the recently appointed Director of Admissions, announced last week that, effective this year, students wishing to enter Loyola, will be required to take the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) of the College Entrance Examination Board (CEEB).

He stated that this test will also be used in determining scholarship winners. Although the test is given at four times during the year, Father Scanlan urges applicants to take the December 4 test. He reminds them that the final date of registration for the December 4 test is November 6.

Evening Enrollment 2000

The Evening College also recorded change this year, but its change is in the growth of its student body. Father John Burns, S.J., Dean of the Evening College and Graduate Division, revealed that the Evening College has grown considerably in the last year, with this year's registration just below the two thousand mark. The growth led to more graduates last year and an increase of classes this year.

More and More Grads

In June, 1965, 96 graduates received Master's degrees and 43 received Bachelor's degrees. This compares with 69 Master's and 41 Bachelor's earned in 1964.

This fall, four sections were added to already established classes to accommodate the increase of students, and to keep the number of students in each class as low as possible.

Loyola Beats Princeton, Dartmouth; Society Departs Today for LaSalle

By Dick Fleming

The Ballarmine Debating Society of Loyola College defeated the debate teams of Princeton University and Dartmouth College this past weekend enroute to a 5-5 record in the Rosemont College Debate Tourney.

Tom Doonan and Dick Fleming won three out of five debates on the affirmative, while Phil Ershler and Henry Bogdan posted a 2-3 record on the negative.

Loyola also defeated LaSalle College, Susquehanna University, and St. Peter's College. The Greyhound debaters suffered losses at the hands of C.W. Post College, the University of Pennsylvania, the University of Rhode Island, Towson State College, and the United States Military Academy.

Georgetown University won first place in the tournament with an 8-2 record; King's College finished second, and the University of Pennsylvania was third in the tourney.

Dennis Keating '65, presently a law student at the University of Pennsylvania, served as Loyola's judge.

This morning, the Bellarmine debaters left for LaSalle College to participate in their third tournament this season. Bob Mitchell and Tom Doonan will defend the affirmative; and John Thaler and John Delaney will uphold the negative.

Loyola carries a season record of 8-8 into this weekend's competition. Approximately thirty schools will participate in the tournament.

Military Science Dept. Acquires Two Officers and Three NCO's

By Drew Conneen

The Military Science Department has announced the addition of five men to the faculty.

Two of the new personnel are officers, and the other three are non-commissioned officers. These additions increase the total number of regular army personnel at Loyola to ten.

Ranking officer among the new members is Major Charles I. Burnette, a recent graduate of the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. Maj. Burnette is also a Distinguished Military Graduate of the class of '55 from V.P.I. Prior to attending Command and General Staff College, Maj. Burnette served as Aide-de-Camp to General Paul D. Harkins, Commander, U.S. Forces, Vietnam. His positions in the department are Assistant Professor of Military Science and Adjutant.

Capt. Henry Boyer Jr., a DMG from Stetson University, Deland, Fla., has assumed the position of Assistant Professor. Prior to his arrival at Loyola, Capt. Boyer served with the Assistant Command in Fay-ninh Province, South Vietnam. For his distinguished service there, he was recently awarded the Bronze Star and the Air Medal by direction of President Johnson.

Capt. Boyer agrees with Maj. Burnette's statement that Loyola is a most impressive college with a well balanced Military Science Department. With the existing world situation the students of Loyola have an excellent opportunity to take advantage of openings not offered at colleges without an ROTC program.

Sgt. Major Walter Hodges has been assigned to Loyola as Detachment Sergeant Major. Assignments outside the U.S. have taken him to Japan, Korea, and Germany. Before

Levin Views War Psychoanalytically

By John Barranger

The Gorman Lecture series will present Dr. Leon A. Levin on November 10 at 11 a.m. in Ruzicka Hall. The topic of the program will be "A Psychoanalytical View of War."

Dr. Levin is now Assistant Professor of Psychiatry at the University of Maryland Psychiatric Institute. He received both his Bachelor of Science and Medical Doctor degrees from the University of Wisconsin.

Dr. Varga, chairman of the lecture series, says that the format will be a lecture followed by a period for questions and discussion.

his present assignment, Sgt. Hodges was a member of the ROTC Detachment at Gettysburg College, Pa. Sgt. Major Hodges, a senior NCO, is a native of Oneonta, N.Y.

Master Sergeant Fred De Maio, a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., has joined the Loyola ROTC Detachment as Senior Drill Instructor. Sgt. De Maio's last assignment was with the 7th Cavalry, Korea.

Staff Sergeant Jimmy J. Inman has come to Loyola as Administrative NCO. A native of Haywood County, N.C., he has served in Germany and Vietnam. For outstanding meritorious service in Vietnam, Sgt. Inman was awarded the Bronze Star and the Air Medal at ceremonies held this month on the Loyola College campus.

Fellowship Competitors Announced by Dean Lavin

By John Kelly

Father Henry St. C. Lavin, Dean of Studies, has announced the results of Loyola's Fellowship Committee nominations.

The interviews for the candidates took place on Wednesday, October 20. Nominated for a Danforth Foundation Fellowship was Robert Diegelman, the President of the Student Body and a political science major. Also chosen to try for the same fellowship was Joel Rochester, also a political science major.

Candidates for the Fulbright Fellowships are Robert Garvey, at large candidate, Joel Rochester, and Robert Diegelman from the State of Maryland.

The Fellowship Committee, which screens the various competitors, is headed by Dr. Hands, Chairman of the English Department. Also on the committee are Dr. Varga, Dr. Boyle, Mr. Mair, Mr. McNierney and Dr. Weigman.

The Danforth Foundation Fellowship applies to graduate schools in the United States. For this prize, a varied intellectual background is needed plus a desire to teach.

The Fulbright Fellowship can only be used for study overseas. This award has as its purpose the stimulation of cultural exchange.

Tempests Entertain At Second Mixer

By Bob Zarnoch

The second ASO mixer of the year will be held Friday, November 5, from 9 to 12 in the student cafeteria. The music will be provided by the Tempests.

Girls from Notre Dame, Mount Saint Agnes, St. Joseph's, Villa Julie, Towson State, and Goucher have been invited. Students from several of the area nursing schools have also been invited.

The last mixer attracted nearly 900 students. The ASO Mixer Chairman, Tom Keech, is expecting a slightly smaller crowd this time, indicating that everyone should be accommodated.

There will be an admission charge of fifty cents.

Film Seminar

Loyola's film seminar has come a very long way in a very short time. Within recent memory, the seminar considered it a good night if thirty people attended a film. This year the situation seems to have changed immensely--for the better.

The turnout last Friday for the seminar's first presentation, "The Seventh Seal," was simply overwhelming. We sincerely hope that this renewed interest in films will continue throughout the year. Congratulations are in order for John Caulfield, who has been the guiding spirit behind the film seminar for the past two years.

Perhaps the day is dawning when more students will take advantage of the many opportunities on campus for cultural enrichment (the play to be presented tonight comes immediately to mind). We hope so.

Pulchritude

Loyola students are indeed fortunate. Any student of the educational process knows that the physical plant of a school can exert a positive influence on the learning process. This applies especially to higher education.

Autumn turns the Loyola campus into a kaleidoscope of colors as the leaves turn, providing a sight that is restful and inspiring. This is truly an example of nature's pulchritude.

Another inspiring example of nature's pulchritude just as readily noticed is the pert and perky faculty secretaries and staff. The Administration is to be congratulated for its excellent taste.

If there is any truth to the assertion that attractive scenery helps learning, we look forward to seeing a Dean's List of 800 students come January.

The Reader's Right

Sir: I quite agree with the sentiments expressed in your editorial, "Peacemongers," three weeks ago. I am reminded of the Protestant chaplain (whose name escapes me) aboard a Navy vessel in Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941 whose 8 a.m. service was so rudely interrupted by the Japanese. He abruptly ended his service with the sentence, "Praise the Lord and Pass the ammunition!"

This brief sentence capsulizes the soldier's code of conduct: "I will never forget that I am an American fighting man, responsible for my actions, and dedicated to the principles which made my country free. I will trust in my God and in the United States of America."

Nicholas V. Conti

Sir: For those who have read "The Open Mind" without preconceived notions, "The Open Mind" needs no defense; for those who were prejudiced, no amount of argument will convince. So it is to those who have not read "The Open Mind" that I write.

The purpose in founding "The Open Mind" was to provide an outlet, an incentive, for students who wanted to develop their literary talents. We felt that this could best be done by publishing large numbers of quality manuscripts. IGNIS could not do this last year because of its rigid organizational setup, the suggestion that THE GREYHOUND comes into this field is absurd. So after the last issue of IGNIS was out, we founded our magazine, as a class magazine, with administration and faculty support.

As the upperclassmen on the Student Council and THE GREYHOUND have decided that "good order among activities" is more important than developing literary talent and interest at Loyola, we can only comply with their wishes and cease publication of "The Open Mind," excepting of course the forthcoming issue.

One final remark to those who didn't follow "The Open Mind" dispute: don't believe everything you read on the editorial page.

William Walsh '68

Sir: Hearty thanks to the Watchdog! It was comforting to read (Gr., 10/22) that my red suspenders have not appeared on the campus scene unnoticed. In the Matching Test, incidentally, it seemed to me, after reflection on the weighty problem the entry "undistributed middle" posed for some of your academic readers, that "Julian the Apostate" might well be the logical choice. Julian, history has it, was quite the trencherman, or so I have been assured on the basis of his substantial research in related areas by my colleague, Fr. McManamin.

Peter McCormick, S. J.

Ed. Note:

During the past week we received several other letters both for and against our Editorial on "The Open Mind," but lack of space prohibits their printing.

VIEWPOINT

'Bitch-In'

By John O'Neill

One of the more sensible college demonstrations to date took place at the University of Colorado at Boulder. The students labeled it "A Bitch-In Against the Multiversity." By multiversity, they meant the IBM machine-controlled campus on which tests, meals, courses, and numerous other scholarly functions are presided over by IBM 70-40. This type of automated education has increased alarmingly in the last decade and probably has adversely affected the educational system as a whole.

Placards Raised

Some of the 2800 participants marched around the campus with signs reading: "We do not want to be folded, spindled, or mutilated." Others took to the speaker's platform and aired their grievances which ranged from philosophical examinations of society to denunciation of the showers in the dorms. The speakers were all of the "normal student type," with no sandled, bearded "rebels" or faculty members present, even though both had been invited.

The absence of the faculty is very peculiar because the Administration set up the entire program, and even gave the students the use of the Memorial Center, complete with hot coffee and donuts.

Interesting Coeds

An interesting aspect of the demonstration was the group of coeds, clad only in red ribbon, who paced up and down the aisles. They carried placards which read "We protest the red tape at the University of Colorado."

The actual "bitching" process took from 10 p.m. until 4 a.m. Some students protested against the protest. These were allowed to have their say before the Administration, who, in a typical display of everything wrong with today's multiversity, gave them IBM cards with numbers, and were allowed a time of 5 minutes to bitch against the bitching. After the speeches, their ideas were separated and classified by the computers, and a list of the main points published.

Loyola College does not have this particular problem. Here, luckily, we are not slaves to an IBM machine, and, hence, receive a better education. Unhappily, we don't have any coeds to dress (?) in red ribbon and parade, but we have no use for such a demonstration now. We hope we never will.

Foghorn Presents
Mich Greenhill

The Foghorn Folk Center, located at 103 W. 22nd Street, offers some real entertainment treats in the coming weeks. Performers such as Josh White, Jack Elliot, Tom Paxton, and Phil Ochs, who have made folk singing and music so popular in this country, have appeared at the Foghorn. Mike O'Hara, the owner, constantly searches for performers of high quality to make any evening at the Foghorn a delight.

On October 29-31, Mich Greenhill appears. Mich, Prestige recording artist, comes to the Foghorn from Boston, where he has appeared at coffee houses in that area. He has done extensive concert work, singing at Harvard and Brandeis University. Along with his other accomplishments, Mich Greenhill has also appeared on the television show, "Folk City, U.S.A."

For a two dollar cover charge you are entitled to three different shows (8:30, 10:30, and 12:30), a pleasant atmosphere, and "a completely unique experience" in folk entertainment. For information and reservations, call 685-0685.

... I TOLD you we shouldn't have come here. Where else would you get o mite-box for a treat?

Well, it's almost Halloween. You can be sure we'll be out in the pumpkin patch Sunday night waiting for The Great Pumpkin to arise. We're hoping that the pumpkin will bring us a passing grade in ethics.

We purchased our ticket for the Military Ball last week. We're disappointed to learn that we can't wear our Beagle Scout uniform, but we WILL appear in uniform, however. Our grandfather was a corporal in the WW II Canine Corps. He was a Pekinese.

Before we leave the military life for good, we would like to note that it was amusing to see the Pershing Rifle pledges walking around campus last week, carrying their bananas. The Scabbard and Blade pledge program of physical fitness for unfit Juniors is also commendable. Even George Crocker is starting to lose his undistributed middle.

One note from academia: The following questions, which are samples from the Graduate Record Examination, are presented as a public service:

1. Which is more plausible a) a ninety foot giant or b) a six inch king?
2. What is the name of the elephant boy in the Buster Brown Show?
3. True or False. Theology is a contributing factor in sleeping sickness.
4. Discuss parallel character development in Midnight the Cat and Froggy the Gremlin.
5. What is a will act which has been placed and, since it has never been revoked, is regarded as extending to a given effect? (Hint: They're all English words.)
6. What is the world's record for shaves with the Glotz stainless blade?

Harriers Outcoursed, 24-34; Face Towson Here Today

By Tom Wehner

Loyola traveled to Emmitsburg on Saturday to meet Mount St. Mary in hope of recording their first win of the season. For a while it looked as though the Hounds may have done it, as frosh Andy Carter took first place with a time that was not far off the course record, and his classmate Steve Rice finished not far behind in third place. However, the Mounties placed five harriers between Rice and John Cosden to gain the victory. Final score: Mount 24, Loyola 34.

Here was just another example of how the Hounds' lack of depth resulted in a losing effort. The meet did have its brightspots. Pat Malloy, one of the four experienced men on the Loyola squad showed signs of breaking out of a slump which resulted from an illness. Also, Mount coach Jim Deegan paid winner Carter a great compliment by commenting to Hound coach Bill McElroy that Andy looked good enough to be the Mason-Dixon conference champion. The fleet frosh has an opportunity to realize this goal in the M-D Championships at Bridgewater on November 19.

The remaining members of the Loyola team showed signs of additional development in coping with the tough Mount course, and continued to become a strong team for future meets. With such favorable omens, the morale of the team is high as they prepare to meet Washington College and Towson. If the present trends continue, the Hounds should make a good showing at both the Loyola Invitational and the M-D Championships.

Listen, 'I ain't But One Man'

By Dennis Kreiner

In any Athletic Department, there are a few men who do an indispensable job. These are men who are never in the spotlight, although they constantly prepare those who are. Unlike the coaches, they never receive their due credit, but any coach will tell you that without them the teams could not take the field.

Wilson Beane has been in the Loyola Athletic Department for twenty-five years. Although he is listed as a trainer, his duties are far beyond this. He supervises the distribution of the uniforms and towels, checks out and keeps inventory on all athletic equipment and generally, "just tries to get along" with everybody. The gym received a facelifting over the summer, and, as might be imagined, Mr. Beane played an integral part: refinishing the gym floor.

When he is not working around the gym, Wilson is helping the Dramatics Society by serving refreshments. Whenever there is a dance or an oyster roast, he can always be found working in some capacity.

Bobby Harmon

Bobby Harmon, Baltimore born boxer and morale builder, has spent eleven of his thirty-three years at Loyola. His work, unlike Wilson's, is centered around the athletic field. He marks off the field for games and keeps the track in shape.

Bob has distinguished himself as the only field manager to box in the State Amateurs. But his activity in athletics has not stopped here. He has competed in football, track, gymnastics, rowing and wrestling. He was also Head Counselor and Waterfront Director at Camp Druid Hill. Boxing, though, is his life and as Bobby has said; "Once boxing gets into your blood, there's just nothing you can do. It's part of you!"

Bobby is married and has three children. He is still looking for that "one big break," and he claims he will continue to fight until he gets it.

When asked who, on campus, he would most like to be, Bobby smiled, "the Athletic Director." Move over, Lefty, you've got competition.

Beidronski Paces Booters As Roadtrip Is Successful

By Lou Nyitrai

The kickers of Loyola last week marked up one of their most successful road trips in years. On Wednesday the Green and Grays swept by American University 3-1, and on Saturday they stopped arch rival Mt. St. Mary's 2-1.

Coach Jim Bullington took a 20 member squad to A.U., and the double revenge was under way. Both A.U. and the Mount had downed Loyola in '64.

Loyola was in command of the entire first half of the game. Short, quick passes proved effective for the Hound offense as they were mounting attack on top of attack. Centerforward Phil Biedronski, Hound high scorer, dented the cords first, taking a pass from left wing Mike Kelley, dribbling the ball by the A.U. defense, and in for the goal.

It seemed that A.U. was cracking under the pressure of the Loyola booters. The Hounds took advantage of the disorganized tactics of their opponents and kept the pressure on. It was Phil, the opportunist, who again revised the scoreboard, when he booted in a perfect cross from right wing Denny Palmer, stretching Loyola's lead to 2 goals.

Neither team scored for the remaining few minutes of the half.

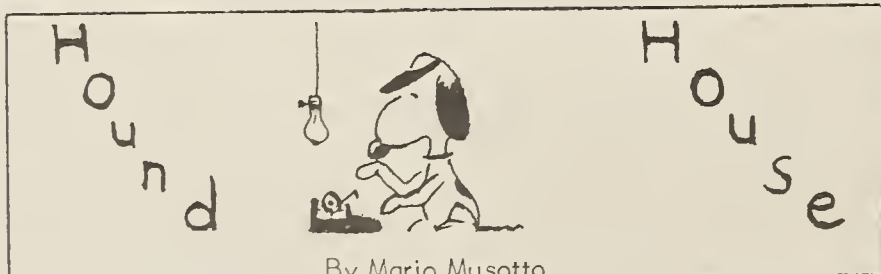

Starting the second half the Hounds lost some of their momentum. A.U. was on the attacking end, and the result--a tally, making the score 2-1.

Having their lead cut down, the Green and Gray seemed to "awaken," and continued the style of play exhibited in the first half. But it took a super effort on the part of Lance Hartley to get one by the tough A.U. defense, to make the score 3-1, and put the game out of reach of the Eagles.

Stop number two for the Hound booters was Mt. St. Mary's.

On the Mount's muddy, makeshift soccer field, the Hounds jumped on top with two goals in the first fifteen minutes of the game.

Phil Biedronski, again, proved his talent by scoring for the Hounds. Phil broke away from his defensive Block "L" Club president, Bob Lister, has announced that special "Cheer Hats" will go on sale to students in the student lounge on November 9 for the price of $1.50. The Block "L" hopes that these hats will instill unified support for all athletic activities.

Scenes of organized cheering were most impressive last year at the Civic Center. Teams such as Manhattan, St. Peter's, and Georgetown were supported by their students wearing hats banded with their school colors.

The Loyola "Cheer Hat" will be modeled after the classic straw hat. The skimmers will be white with the traditional green and gray colored band. "Go Hounds" will be brightly lettered on the band.

A large sale of the "Cheer Hats" will go a long way to boost student athletic support. Sitting together en masse with the distinctive white lids will surely encourage our athletes.

man and took a well placed cross from Mike Kelley, and put it in the corner by the helpless goalie.

The next tally came off the foot of wing Lou Nyitrai. Lou received the ball from fullback Tom Manning and took it down the line, past the Mount defense, and crossed it in the center. The ball was deflected by a Mount back into the net, providing the winning margin for Loyola.

The Mount's only tally came in the first half of the game when the goalie Kim Doyle lost his footing.
